What is the Henderson Libraries Foundation?

The purpose of the Henderson Libraries Foundation is to help the Henderson Libraries in its mission to create a literate community by providing financial support over and above the annual operating fund. In a time when its operating budget is smaller than ever, the Henderson Libraries relies on the support of the Foundation to continue to provide funds for the following areas:

Library Collections

The collection includes books available at any branch of Henderson Libraries, as well as online and downloadable materials available through mypubliclibrary.com. In fiscal year 2014, patrons checked out 1,695,279 books, audio books, DVDs and other media from the Henderson Libraries.

Outreach Services

Building a literate community doesn’t just happen within the confines of a library. The Henderson Libraries expands its reach into the community by offering programs like pre-kindergarten literacy skill classes for children at recreational centers and daycares and reading resources at senior assisted living centers. Moving beyond the walls of libraries is the key to providing lifelong learning opportunities to all of our residents.

Innovative Technology

Each branch offers up-to-date public computer labs as well as online resources and downloadable books that can be accessed from anywhere at anytime.

Capital Projects

These types of projects enable the Henderson Libraries to expand its physical presence in communities throughout the city of Henderson, providing services critical to a high quality of life. Capital projects include construction of new locations, remodeling, improving and expanding existing library buildings.

Scholarships

The Foundation, through the Joan T. Wholihan Scholarship, awards an annual scholarship to a qualified individual in Southern Nevada who is seeking a Masters in Library and Information Science.

How Does the Foundation Work?

The Henderson Libraries Foundation is a tax exempt organization that is funded by donations in four key ways:

Gifts

Monetary gifts are accepted from individuals or organizations in any amount and may be restricted or unrestricted in use.

Grants

A grant is a sum of money donated with a specific outcome in mind.

Bequests

A bequest is a donation that happens at the time of the donor’s death and is left behind in the individual’s will.

In-kind donations

A gift given in goods, commodities, or services instead of money.

What Do I Get?

Libraries today are full of activity. In addition to traditional books, the Henderson Libraries offers public computer labs with free Internet access, DVDs, music and downloadable media for check out. It also offers hundreds of free programs for children, teens and adults every month. In short, by supporting the Henderson Libraries Foundation you are giving the gift of libraries to generations to come. The Foundation also recognizes those donors that do not wish to remain anonymous.
